Es war einmal … „ein König!“, werden meine lieben Zuhörer sofort sagen. Richtig, diesmal habt ihr’s erraten. Es war einmal der letzte König von Italien, Vittorio Emanuele III., der nach dem Zweiten Weltkrieg ins Exil geschickt wurde. Dieser König stand im Ruf, ein Mann von geringer humanistischer Bildung zu sein, mehr an wirtschaftlichen und militärischen Fragen interessiert, wenn auch ein leidenschaftlicher Sammler alter Münzen. Eines Tages, so wird erzählt, musste er eine Gemäldeausstellung eröffnen und war also gezwungen, durch die Säle zu gehen und die Bilder zu bewundern. Vor einer idyllischen Landschaft, die ein liebliches Tal mit einem Dorf am Berghang zeigte, stand er lange betrachtend, dann fragte er den Direktor der Ausstellung: „Wie viele Einwohner hat dieses Dorf?“
